

Insects are jumping, flying, crawling and running all around us. They can live in very hot jungles and deserts or even in very cold places. They come in many different sizes, shapes and colors.

These colors and shapes are sometimes designed to scare away larger animals or to disguise them so that they look like part of a plant or tree. This is called camouflage.